Mrs. Susan Miller Hisle.

The following item is taken from the Methodist Advocate and we reprint it even at this late date for the reason that a large number of friends and relatives of this most excellent christian woman are readers of the Climax both in this State and elsewhere and may not have seen the item.

Mrs. Susan Miller Hisle died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Chenault, near Richmond, Ky., Thursday afternoon, the 24th of October, 1912. Her death was very sudden and resulted from heart trouble. She was in her usual health, and had spent a pleasant day with her family, she was preparing to attend divine services with a friend; the weather was ideal and she had just walked into the yard, where she was found about fifteen minutes later—life being extinct. There had been evidently no suffering; she sat half reclining against the house, still holding her spectacles in her hand. She was 62 years old on the 2nd of August last, and was an exceedingly handsome and well preserved woman, and a devout member of the Methodist church, where she was a regular attendant. Her work for the Master's cause will be sadly missed. She seemed to live to do good deeds and to minister to those in distress. She could easily have been a star of the first magnitude in the world's fashionable society, but she preferred to let the light of saving truth shine through her life that the wanderers in darkness and sin might find the way to God and Heaven. She loved her church, its simple service and old-fashioned songs. Her bright face which was always an inspiration to her preacher will be seen no more in the congregation on earth. We can hardly become accustomed to her absence there; and it is harder still to think how she will be missed in her family where she has long reigned the queen of all hearts. Only God knows what her absence means. Many will listen in vain for the foot-fall that told of her coming and dream that they hear the voice that so often soothed and cheered, but will awake to find it was but a dream. They will look in vain for the face illumined by the trusting soul within. But there is comfort for them, and for us all. She surrendered her body to death, but in that very moment her redeemed soul was freed, and is now enjoying the presence of the Lord.

The procession that followed her remains to their last resting place was the longest seen in Richmond for years—attesting to some extent, the love and esteem our people had for this godly woman; but the thought of her triumphant departure causes our tears to cease, or if not, let us in sweet submission look up to that fairer world where she has gone to be forever with the Lord.

In every home we see the footprints of death and feel the blighting chill that has left behind, but when his fatal shaft struck our beloved sister, multitudes of hearts were wounded and a cloud of grief overspread the entire community. Her sunny spirit, her intense interest in people and affairs constituted a charming personality whose magnetic force drew to her many friends who today mingle their tears with ours and share in the common grief.

What though the curtain darkly falls And hides our friend from loving view, What's the eclipse where she abides We know her loving, loyal and true.

Her hands were ever filled with gifts, Her coming brought a note of cheer; We know she lives in Paradise, But, Oh, we sadly miss her here.

The pearly gates were opened wide, To welcome her the angels stood, A white soul waited from the earth, A soul redeemed, all pure and good.

Dear friends from every walk in life, Brought flowers for her hallowed grave, And autumn's brilliant sun o'er all A flood of glory seemed to wave.

We were not there to say farewell, Nor will we count our treasure lost, Sweet communion still with her we'll hold, Nor count the tears our parting cost.

For all events are garnered grain, If we God's laws but understood, And days of care and nights of pain, And death and sorrow work for good.

Richmond Man After It.

An applicant for the Eighth district Internal Revenue Collectorship, who has not figured much in the public eye, but is nevertheless said to be right smart in the running, is John Gibson, of Richmond. Mr. Gibson, who is one of the best known and most active Democrats of Madison county, has strong backing for the place, and his friends regard him as a formidable applicant and say that whoever beats him will be the Collector at Danville. There are over a score of applicants.—Louisville Times.

Mr. Todd Sells Two Residences.

Mr. J. A. Todd, of the Todd-Taylor Lumber Co., has sold to Ex-Congressman D. C. Edwards, of London, two nice homes in the East End of the city for $7,200. They are already rented.

Press Boys Strong For Beckham.

If surface indications afford any guide, the Democratic county press is more united in support of Mr. Beckham for United States Senator than it has been for many years behind any candidate for a Democratic nomination. One of the State newspaper men stated yesterday that, after a careful canvass, he had found only five out of the fifty Democratic editors present who were avowedly anti-Beckham, and, while a few were non-committal, more than two-thirds were outspoken in their support of the former Governor.—Louisville Post.

Keep "Open House" For Horses and Mules.

"Open house" for the horses and mules of Evansville, Ind., owned by poor people was kept Wednesday by Adolph Melzer, a wealthy soap manufacturer. This is believed to be the first entertainment of the kind ever given. The horses and mules were given a free feed and the owners who brought them to the "Friendly Inn" were served with ham sandwiches and coffee. Mr. Melzer, who is known as the friend of the duff animals, says he will make this "open house" stunt an annual event.

The Parcels Post.

The parcels post system, of which we have talked and read so much, is now in vogue and big packages are being sent through the mails at a very small cost. It is stated that a brick manufacturing firm up East sent a thousand brick samples of its work on Jan. 1st, to prospective buyers all over the country. Cashier R. E. Turley, of the State Bank & Trust Co., was the first patron of the new system in Richmond. He sent the inner tire of his auto to Cincinnati at about the price he would have had to pay to get a boy to take it to the depot and express it. Among the articles that passed through the Richmond office the first day the system was inaugurated, was an eight-pound package of sausage from a Nicholasville person to one at Berea.

Lucky Escape.

The belt on the governor of the engine used at the Richmond Lumber Co.'s plant slipped off Thursday and the engine "ran off." The fourteen-foot fly wheel was running at a terrific rate of speed that the engine pulled loose from its moorings and knocked out a portion of the end of the building. It was finally stopped by the fireman, who cut off the steam at the risk of his life. It is remarkable that nobody was hurt and that more damage was not done the building.

Splendid Pictures.

The three-reel feature, "Star of Bethlehem" shown at the Opera House Tuesday night was indeed a feature. The pictures were clear and good and the acting was superb. The orchestra played appropriate music and the very large crowd enjoyed to the fullest extent this good program. On Thursday night another three-reel feature was given. This was the "Auto Bandits of Paris," a very thrilling picture in detail of the many thefts and murders committed by the band which baffled the police for a long time, but whose members were finally brought to pay the penalty of death. In this connection it might not be out of place to say that at the opera house the first performance is never over until the curtain goes down. Manager Baxter gave five reels Thursday night and some left some and of the third and many at the end of the fourth reel, thus seeing only a part of the show.
